Webinar ID: 876 6999 7563

Students from Boston College's Real Estate Field Projects course, offered through the school's Carroll School of Management, will make their final presentation on their semester-long independent study project.

The students worked with the Town to imagine new opportunities in the Mixed Use 128 district. Their research, which will be discussed in their presentation and made publicly available, will be used by the Town as it considers long term options for this district.
